HISTORY

Turf Cocktail

There are several variations on the Turf Cocktail, each a slight riff on the traditional Martini. The earliest of these recipes can be traced to George J. Kappeler's 'Modern American Drinks' from 1895, and is a simple mix of gin and Bitters. Harry MacElhone's version from 1922 was crafted with Gin, maraschino, bitters and absinthe.

Manhattan

As popular history suggests, the Manhattan originated at the Manhattan Club in New York City circa 1870. History attributes Dr. Iain Marshall for the cocktail's creation, inventing it for a banquet hosted by Jennie Jerome (Lady Randolph Churchill, mother of Winston) in honor of presidential candidate Samuel J. Tilden.

Champagne Julep

The Champagne Julep appears in Harry Johnson's 1882 Bartender's Guide Manual and Calls for the bare essentials: Champagne, Mint, and sugar.

By the 1933 edition of 'Here's How'./

A full Jigger of Brandy has found its way in plus lemon Juice. We are using the recipe from The Staton Social Club. The Bar was situated on Manhattan's Lower East Side in the 1940's.

Gibson

The exact origin of the Gibson is unclear, with numerous popular tales and theories about its conception. According to one popular idea Charles Dana Gibson is responsible for the creation of the Gibson around 1857, when he supposedly challenged Charley Connolly, the bartender of the Players Club in New York City, to improve upon the martini's recipe. Connolly simply substituted an onion for the olive and named the drink after the patron.

Jack Rose

It has been suggested that the Jack Rose Cocktail was invented by Joseph P. Rose, a Newark, New Jersey Restaurateur, around 1905. Joseph once held the title of "World Champion Mixologist" from Harvey's Famous Restaurant in Washington, D.C. The most likely explanation for the name is that it is a simple portmanteau - it is made with Apple Jack and is rose colored by the grenadine.

The Jack Rose fell out of Fashion until a June 2003 article the Washington Post published that chronicled two writers' quest to find a Jack Rose in a Washington Dc Bar.
